IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

[Case No. 18274.]

SAGRADA ORDEN DE PREDICADORES DE LA PRO-VINCIA DEL SANTÍSIMO ROSARIO DE FILIPINAS, Plaintiff and Appellee,

VERSUS

W. TRINIDAD, as Insular Collector of Internal Revenue of the Philippine Islands, Defendant and Appellant.

APPELLATE JURISDICTION

Be it remembered that, on the dates respectively mentioned, the following proceedings were had in the above-entitled action, to wit:

On the 16th day of April, 1920, the plaintiff filed in the Office of the Clerk of the Court of First Instance of Manila, a complaint against the defendant, W. Trinidad, as follows:

[Caption and title omitted.]

Comes now the plaintiff, through the undersigned attorneys, and as a cause of action to this Honorable Court, alleges:

I

That the herein plaintiff is a corporation sole organized under the laws of these Islands and known by the name of Sagrada Orden de Predicadores de la Provincia del Santísimo Rosario de Filipinas, also by the shorter name of Corporación de Padres Dominicos.

II

That the defendant was, and still is, the Collector of Internal Revenue of the Government of the Philippine Islands, duly appointed, qualified, and acting as such during the period of time to which the facts hereinafter alleged refer.

III

That on or about the 28th day of June, 1918, and some time after said date the defendant required the plaintiff to render a statement of its income from the year 1913 to the year 1917 inclusive and to pay the income tax provided for by the Laws of Congress of October 3, 1913 and September 8, 1916, with the understanding that if plaintiff did not so render said statement, defendant would cause it to be prepared according to the information he might have available.

IV

That on the 8th day of July, plaintiff answering said requirement stated to the defendant that, according to the provisions of the above mentioned laws and for the reasons stated in an affidavit to support its contention, a copy of which marked Exhibit A is attached to this complaint and made a part of the same, it was exempted from paying said tax.

V

That in spite of the reasons above mentioned, the defendant in his official capacity as Collector of Internal Revenue, willfully, unlawfully, and arbitrarily, without express authority in law, and contrary to its provisions, required the plaintiff to pay the sum of ₱1,541.31, as income tax of the plaintiff corporation from March 1 to December 31, 1913.

VI

That the herein plaintiff protested the collection of said tax and made known its protest before and at the time of making the payment of one thousand five hundred forty-one pesos and thirty-one centavos (P1,541.31), Philippine Currency, the sum of money paid to the defendant on the 10th day of October, 1919, at his order and to avoid greater penalties which the defendant might impose on the plaintiff should the latter refuse to make said payment.

That for the reasons above stated said defendant is unlawfully in possession of the sum of P1,541.31 belonging to the plaintiff.

Wherefore, plaintiff prays this Court to render judgment ordering the defendant to return to the plaintiff the sum of one thousand five hundred forty-one pesos and thirty-one centavos (P1,541.31) plus legal interests from the 10th day of October, 1919, when payment was made under protest, and to pay the costs of this action.

MANILA, P. I., April 16, 1920.

JOSE ARNAIZ,

Attorneys for the Plaintiff.

Address: 50 Beaterio St., Manila.

On the 20th day of May, 1920, the Attorney-General, on behalf of the Collector of Internal Revenue filed the following answer:

[Caption and title omitted.]

Comes now the defendant, by the undersigned Attorney-General, and in answer to plaintiff's complaint, alleges:

I

That he admits the allegation contained in paragraphs 1, 2, 3 and 6 of the complaint.

II

That he denies all and singular all the other allegations contained in said complaint, with the exception of those which, in his special defense, are expressly admitted.

III

As a special defense the defendant alleges:

1. That the plaintiff corporation was not operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, and that during the period from March 1 to December 31, 1913, it derived an income of ₱154,130.68 from rents, dividends, interests, and sundry business transactions.

2. That on said income there became due and payable from the plaintiff the sum of ₱1,541.31 as income tax under the provisions of the Federal Income Tax Law of 1913.

3. That the collection of this tax was authorized by law and plaintiff is not entitled to its refund.

Attorney-General.

Assistant Attorney,
Bureau of Justice.

On the 17th day of September, 1920, the case was heard by Hon. Judge Simplicio del Rosario.

On the 12th day of October, 1920, the court rendered the following decision:

[Caption and title omitted.]

DECISION

The parties entered into the following agreement:

"That the plaintiff is a corporation sole constituted under sections 154 to 164 of Act No. 1459 of the Philippine Commission, and is organized and operated for religious, beneficial, scientific and educational purposes in these Islands and in its Missions in China, Cochinchina and Japan, and that neither its net income nor part of its rents from whatever source it may come is applied to the benefit of any particular stockholder or individual, or of any of its members, and that no part of the whole or of some of its temporal properties belong to any of its members, who have no rights to the same, even in case of dissolution of the corporation.

"That the dividends and interests or profits and expenses which appear in Exhibit 1 of the defendant as the income of the plaintiff, constitute the income derived from the investments of the capital of the plaintiff corporation, which was invested, in the year 1913, nearly in the manner and form specified in Exhibit 2 of the defendant, and that the rents appearing in Exhibit 1 were derived from the properties which together with their valuations appear in Exhibit 3 of the defendant."

The sum of ₩1,541.31 which is now sought to be recovered is the tax on the income of the plaintiff corporation from March 1 to December 31, 1913, which it paid to the defendant under protest on October 10, 1919, notwithstanding the fact that the corporation did not think it was under the obligation so to do, but only to avoid greater penalties.

The plaintiff corporation alleges that it is exempt from paying said income tax, under the provisions of the Act of Congress of October 3, 1913, letter (g) on the one hand, and under those of another law of the same Congress of September 8, 1916, section 11, paragraph 6, on the other, because it is a corporation sole constituted according to the provisions of Act No. 1459 and for religious, beneficial, scientific and educational purposes in these Islands and in its missions in China, Cochinchina, and Japan.

The provisions of law above quoted unanimously provide that corporations and associations organized and operated exclusively for religious, beneficial, scientific and educational purposes and whose net income in no part is applied to the benefit of any stockholder or individual, shall be exempt from paying the income tax.

If, as the defendant admits, the rents which the plaintiff corporation earn, from whatever source they may come, are not applied for the benefit of any of its stockholders or members, and that no part of its temporal properties belongs to any of them, inasmuch as they have no rights to them even in case of the dissolution of the corporation, and it being further admitted, as the general public knows, that said corporation is devoted to religious, beneficial, scientific and educational ends and is composed of members who, among other solemn vows, have that of poverty, it is undeniable that said corporation is included within the exemption provided for by both laws and is not under obligation to pay the tax on its income.

But the defendant maintains that the plaintiff corporation is not organized exclusively for religious, educational and charitable purposes but also for commercial and lucrative ends inasmuch as its property includes shares of some companies, real properties which produce rent, makes loans with interest, and sells merchandise.

Such means of making the properties of the corporation earn rents, do not destroy the ends for which it was constituted inasmuch as to develop the activities for which it was established, it must perforce obtain from its properties, in any manner allowed by law, the rents which it needs for a lengthy, broad and important enterprise such as according to the agreed statement of facts, is carried on by the corporation not only in these Islands, as the general public knows, but also in its Missions in China, Cochinchina, and Japan.

Having in mind the very ancient existence of said religious corporation, and taking into consideration its nature and purposes which cannot be compared with agricultural, mercantile, industrial and other kinds of corporations, and considering the great number of its members who must have a decent support, if the property—which is not unlimited—belonging to the religious corporation, the herein plaintiff, were not to be invested in the most productive manner, it would soon be exhausted, and, as a consequence thereof, the ends to which it was established may come to naught, to the prejudice of that part of humanity which is benefited thereby.

The return of the sum of money should therefore be granted.

The defendant is ordered to return, with legal interests from October 10, 1919, to the plaintiff corporation the sum of one thousand five hundred forty-one pesos and thirty-one centavos (₱1,541.31) paid him, and the costs of the action.

Judge.

[Heading and title omitted]

EXCEPTION AND MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL

Now comes the defendant, by his undersigned attorney, and excepts to the decision rendered in the above entitled case on the 12th of October, 1920, and moves this court to set aside the judgment rendered therein and grant a new trial of said action for the following reasons:

1. That the evidence presented does not justify the decision.
2. That the decision is contrary to law.

MANILA, November 8, 1920.

(Sgd.) F. R. FERIA,
Attorney-General, for Defendant.

On November 19, 1920, the foregoing motion for new trial was denied by the court; to the order denying the motion for new trial the defendant excepted forthwith and gave notice of intention to prepare and file a bill of exceptions for a review by the Supreme Court.

On the 1st day of December, 1920, the defendant filed his bill of exceptions.

On the 17th day of December, 1920, the record was received in the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands and was then duly docketed.

On the 14th day of March, 1921, the defendant and appellant filed his brief.

On the 7th day of May, 1921, the plaintiff and appellee filed its brief.

On the 13th day of July, 1921, the case was finally submitted to the Supreme Court for decision on its merits.

Thereafter, on November 28, 1921, the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands rendered its decision in the case, which said decision is in the words and figures following, to wit:

Defendant and Appellant.

Justices Present: The Chief Justice, Manuel Araullo, and Messrs. E. Finley Johnson, Thos. A. Street, Ramon Avanceña, Ignacio Villamor, and Norberto Romualdez.

DECISION.

JOHNSON, J.:

On the 10th day of October, 1919, the defendant Collector of Internal Revenue demanded of the plaintiff, and the latter paid under protest, the sum of ₱1,541.31 as income tax corresponding to the period from March 31 to December 31, 1913. To recover the said amount, together with legal interest thereon and the costs, the present action was commenced in the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila on the 6th day of April, 1920. From a judgment granting the prayer of the complaint the defendant has appealed to this Court.

The facts are stipulated by the parties as follows:

That the plaintiff is a corporation sole, constituted under sections 154 to 164 of Act No. 1459 of the Philippine Commission, and is organized and operated for religious, beneficial, scientific and educational purposes in these Islands and in its Missions in China, Cochinchina and Japan, and that neither its net income nor part of its rents from whatever source it may come is applied to the benefit of any particular stockholder or individual, or of any of its members, and that no part of the whole or of some of its temporal properties belong to any of its members, who have no rights to the same, even in case of dissolution of the corporation.

That the dividends and interests or profits and expenses which appear in Exhibit 1 of the defendant as the income of the plaintiff, constitute the income derived from the investments of the capital of the plaintiff corporation, which was invested, in the year 1913, nearly in the manner and form specified in Exhibit 2 of the defendant, and that the rents appearing in Exhibit 1 were derived from the properties which together with their valuations appear in Exhibit 3 of the defendant.

According to Exhibits 1, 2 and 3, above mentioned, the plaintiff received ₱90,092.70 for rents on lands and buildings situated in Manila, Cavite, and Rizal; ₱96,465.54 as dividends on shares of stock in the Bank of the Philippine Islands, Fábrica de Hielo de Manila, Johnson Pickett Rope Company, Germinal Cigar and Cigarette Factory, and Philippine Sugar Development Company; the sum of ₱54,239.19 as interests on money loaned and funds deposited in banks; and the sum of ₱68,144.45 as profits from sales of 12 Germinal Cigar and Cigarette Factory stocks, wines, chocolate, merchandise, religious articles and unclassified profits and donations. After expenditures had been deducted from these earnings, the defendant found the sum of ₱154,130.68 on which, according to the contention of the defendant, income tax should be imposed at the rate of 1 per cent under the provisions of the Federal Income Tax Law of 1913.

The only question presented by the appellant is whether the plaintiff-appellee is exempt from the payment of income tax under Paragraph G (a) of the Federal Income Tax Law of 1913 (Act of Congress of October 13, 1913). The pertinent part of said paragraph provides that "nothing in this section shall apply * * * to any corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual."

The Act of Congress of February 24, 1919, contains a similar provision as follows:

Sec. 231. That the following organizations shall be exempt from taxation under this title—
* * * * *

(6) Corporations organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals, no part of the net earnings of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual.

As seen from the above stipulation of facts, the plaintiff is a corporation sole, "organized and constituted for religious, charitable, scientific and educational purposes," and that no part of its property or earnings belongs to, or inures to the benefit of, any of its members, who have no right to the same even in case of dissolution.

The only contention of the defendant-appellant is, that inasmuch as the plaintiff invested part of its capital in commercial and industrial enterprises, it cannot be said to have been operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes, and, therefore, it is not entitled to exemption under the above-quoted provisions of the law. Quoting from Mr. Holmes, in his work on the Federal Taxes, and from the ruling of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of the United States, of May 15, 1919, appellant maintains that: "In order to be exempt, the corporation or association must meet three tests: (a) it must be organized and operated for one or more of the specified purposes; (b) it must be organized and operated exclusively for such purposes; and (c) no part of its income must inure to the benefit of private stockholders or individuals." Appellant contends that the plaintiff did not meet the second test; that it was not operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes.

It is not contended that any part of the profits derived by the plaintiff from the secular investments above referred to was devoted to, or used for, any other purpose than the carrying out of its religious and educational work. It is admitted, on the other hand, that no part thereof inured to any individual member of the plaintiff corporation. Neither is it even intimated by the appellant that the funds so invested by the appellee, as above indicated, were, at the time of their investment, needed by the plaintiff in order to carry out its religious or educational work. On the contrary, appellant himself says in his brief that "all these (funds) were in excess of the corporation's legitimate religious needs."

It appears, then, that the plaintiff invested its surplus funds on hand in the secular enterprises above mentioned in order to derive profits therefrom, to be used exclusively in its religious and educational work. The operation, therefore, though, of course, not religious or educational in nature, was made ultimately and exclusively for religious and educational purposes. We are therefore of the opinion that notwithstanding the investment of its surplus funds in the enterprises mentioned in defendant's Exhibits 2 and 3, the plaintiff corporation still continued to be "organized and operated exclusively for religious and educational purposes," and was, therefore, entitled to the exemption provided by law.

Wherefore, the judgment of the lower court is hereby affirmed, without any finding as to costs. Ten days after notice of this decision final judgment will be entered, and five days thereafter the record will be remanded to the court below. It is so ordered.

ARAULLO, Ch. J., and STREET, AVANCEÑA, VILLAMOR, and ROMUALDEZ, JJ., concur.

On November 29, 1921, the parties were duly notified of the foregoing decision, and, on December 10, 1921, the Clerk of the Supreme Court entered the following final judgment:

VERSUS

W. TRINIDAD, etc., Defendant and Appellant.

MOTION FOR RECONSIDERATION

Comes now the undersigned on behalf of the defendant and appellant and respectfully moves for a reconsideration of the decision rendered by this court in the above-entitled case on November 28, 1921, in so much as said decision holds that the plaintiff corporation is entitled to the exemption provided by paragraph G (a) of the Act of Congress of October 3, 1913.

This motion is based on the following grounds:

1. That it is an established principle of law that an alleged grant of exemption from taxation is strictly construed, and "where it exists it should be carefully scrutinized and not permitted to extend either in scope or duration beyond what the terms of the concession clearly required." (37 Cyc. pp. 892-893). Applying this rule to the case at bar, the plaintiff corporation can not claim exemption under paragraph G (a) of the Act of Congress of October 3, 1913, because it is not a corporation operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific or educational purposes which is one of the conditions expressly required by said Act for purposes of exemption.

2. That the United States officer charged with the execution of the said Act of Congress, namely: the Commissioner of Internal Revenue of the United States, has already ruled that a corporation in the circumstances of the plaintiff is not entitled to exemption from income tax, and this ruling appears to be in accord with the language of the statute and has the support of respectable authorities. Thus, Holmes, in his work on Federal Taxes (p. 214), interprets a similar provision of the Income Tax Law of 1918 as follows:

In order to be exempt, the corporation or association must meet three tests: (a) it must be organized and operated for one or more of the specified purposes; (b) it must be organized and operated exclusively for such purposes; and (c) no part of its income must inure to the benefit of private stockholders or individuals.

As an instance he says:

Where a religious corporation owns a large quantity of farm lands and works it, and also manufactures and sells clothing and other articles for profit, it is not operated exclusively for religious purposes and is not exempt, even though its property is held in common and its profits do not inure to the benefit of individual members of the society.

3. That in view of the extent to which the plaintiff corporation is engaged in business, as shown by the nature of its income, it would not seem to be fair to the other corporations which are also engaged in business to construe the statute as granting exemption in favor of plaintiff. Such exemption might easily put the other corporations out of competition.

W. TRINIDAD, AS INSULAR COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, Petitioner,

PETITION AND BRIEF

On Application for Writ of Certiorari to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands.

To THE HONORABLE, THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES:

W. Trinidad, as Insular Collector of Internal Revenue of the Philippine Islands, by his undersigned counsel, respectfully petitions this Honorable Court for a writ of certiorari addressed to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands in the case of "Sagrada Orden de Predicadores de la Provincia del Santisimo Rosario De Filipinas, Plaintiff and Appellee, vs. W. Trinidad, as Insular Collector of Internal Revenue of the Philippine Islands, Defendant and Appellant, G. R. 17221, and in support of this petition shows:

First.—On October 10, 1919, the petitioner, as Collector of Internal Revenue of the Philippine Islands, demanded of the respondent, a corporation sole constituted under sections 154 to 164 of Act No. 1459 of the Philippine Commission, and the latter paid under protest the sum of 1,541.31 pesos as income tax corresponding to the period from March 31, 1913, to December 31, 1913. To recover back this amount, together with legal interest and costs, the present action was commenced in the Court of First Instance of the City of Manila, P. I., on April 6, 1920. From a judgment of that court, granting the prayer of the complaint, the petitioner appealed to the Supreme Court of the Philippines and that court, after hearing, affirmed, on November 28, 1921, the judgment thus appealed from, but without costs (record, pp. 13-16). Thereupon judgment was entered accordingly by the clerk on December 10, 1921 (record, pp. 16, 17). Petitioner's motion for a reconsideration was denied on December 21, 1921 (record, pp. 17-19), and on December 27, 1921, the petitioner, through the Attorney General of the Philippine Islands, duly excepted to the decision of the court denying his motion for a rehearing, and also to the final judgment therein, and gave notice of his intention to present this petition for a writ of certiorari. The petitioner then applied to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands for the retention of the record in said court pending the preparation, printing and certification of same, and for a stay of the judgment pending his application for a writ of certiorari (record, pp. 19, 20).

Second.—A certified copy of the record in the case, including the proceedings in the court to which the writ is asked to be directed, is furnished herewith as an exhibit.

STATEMENT OF FACTS.

The stipulated facts are these:

"That the plaintiff is a corporation sole, constituted under sections 154 to 164 of Act No. 1459 of the Philippine Commission, and is organized and operated for religious, beneficial, scientific and educational purposes in these Islands and in its Missions in China, Cochinchina and Japan, and that neither its net income nor part of its rents from whatever source it may come is applied to the benefit of any particular stockholder or individual, or of any of its members, and that no part of the whole or of some of its temporal properties belong to any of its members, who have no rights to the same, even in case of dissolution of the corporation.

"That the dividends and interests or profits and expenses which appear in Exhibit 1 of the defendant as the income of the plaintiff, constitute the income derived from the investments of the capital of the plaintiff corporation, which was invested, in the year 1913, nearly in the manner and form specified in Exhibit 2 of the defendant, and that the rents appearing in Exhibit 1 were derived from the properties which together with their valuations appear in Exhibit 3 of the defendant."

RULING OF COURTS BELOW.

Both the trial court and the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands held that the respondent is exempt from the payment of income tax under the provisions of paragraph G (a) of the Act of October 3, 1913 (38 Stat., part I, 114, 172).

Grounds relied upon for the issuance of the writ.

ASSIGNMENT OF ERRORS.

I

The Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands erred—

(a) In holding that the respondent corporation was organized and was operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes; and

(b) In not holding that the respondent corporation was engaged from March 31, 1913, to December 31, 1913, in such ordinary commercial transactions as took it out of the provisions of the above mentioned paragraph "G (a)" of the Act of October 3, 1913, supra.

Wherefore the petitioner respectfully prays for a writ of certiorari, addressed to the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands, directing that court to certify to this court the entire record in the case pending therein, entitled "Sagrada Orden de Predicadores de la Provincia del Santisimo Rosario De Filipinas, Plaintiff and Appellee, vs. W. Trinidad, as Insular Collector of Internal Revenue of the Philippine Islands, Defendant and Appellant," G. R. 17221, in order that the same may be reviewed and determined by this court as provided by law, and that the judgment of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands in said case may be reversed by this Honorable Court.

CERTIFICATE OF COUNSEL.

I, Grant T. Trent, do hereby certify that I am one of the Attorneys for the petitioner herein and that I have carefully examined the foregoing petition, and, in my opinion, the same is well founded and the case is one in which the prayer of the petitioner should be granted by this Court.

W. TRINIDAD, AS INSULAR COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS, Petitioner, vs.

BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF THE PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

NATURE AND OBJECT OF THESE PROCEEDINGS.

While the instant case standing alone involves only 1,541.31 pesos or $770, it is a real test case, for, if the errors complained of are permitted by this court to pass uncorrected, the Philippine Government will not only lose the annual income tax since 1913 which this respondent should pay, amounting as it does to a considerable sum, but also like revenue from other corporations and associations in the Philippine Islands, organized and operated in practically the same manner and along the same lines. We think the court can take judicial notice of this fact.

ARGUMENT.

Section 27 of the Act of August 29, 1916 (39 Stat. 545), which is substantially a re-enactment of Section 10 of the Act of July 1, 1902 (32 Stat., part I, 691, 695), provides that the Supreme Court of the United States shall have jurisdiction to review the final judgments and decrees of the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands in all cases "in which the Constitution or any statute, * * *, of the United States is involved, * * *." This review must now take place on certiorari as provided in Section 5 of the Act of September 6, 1916 (39 Stat. 726). It is the nature of the case at bar which is the test of the jurisdiction of this court. If a statute of the United States is here "involved," the inquiry will then arise "whether the matter is of sufficient importance in itself, and sufficiently open to controversy, to make it the duty of this court to issue the writ applied for in order that the case may be reviewed and determined as if brought here on appeal or writ of error" (Law Ow Bew, Petitioner, 141 U. S. 583, 587).

That paragraph G (a) of the Act of October 3, 1913, supra, is really and substantially involved in this suit cannot be seriously doubted, for the construction placed upon those provisions of that Act by the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands, to the effect that the respondent corporation was "organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes," defeated the right of the Philippine Government to collect and retain the income tax in question, whereas an opposite construction would have sustained that right.

THE UNITED STATES REVENUE ACTS.

The Acts of October 3, 1913 (38 Stat., part I, 114), of September 8, 1916 (39 Stat., part I, 756), of October 3, 1917 (40 Stat., part I, 300), of February 24, 1919, will be hereinafter referred to as the law of 1913, 1916, 1917, and 1918, respectively.

Section 24 of the law of 1916 repealed section 11 of the law of 1913, providing for income tax, except that "it shall remain in force for the assessment and collection of all taxes which have accrued thereunder." The law of 1913 was extended to the Philippines (par. M).

The laws of 1916 and 1917 were repealed by the law of 1918, except for the assessment and collection of all taxes which have accrued thereunder. The law of 1918 does not apply to the Philippines, and the citizens thereof, who are not residents of the United States, are taxable only on income derived from sources within the United States. A local income tax, however, is provided for the Philippines by making the law of 1916, as amended, apply to them (Holmes, Fed. Taxes, 1920 Ed., p. 9). Paragraph 2 of Section 261 of the law of 1918 empowers the Philippine Legislature to amend, alter, modify, or repeal the federal income tax statutes in force in the Islands.

The pertinent provisions in the laws of 1913, 1916, and 1917, relating to exemptions, are as follows:

Par. G. (a) of 1913.—

*"Provided, however, that nothing in this section shall apply * * *, nor to any corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual, * * ."

Section 11, No. 6, of 1916.—

"That there shall not be taxed under this title any income received by any—

"Sixth. Corporation or association organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, no part of the net income of which inures to the benefit of any private stockholder or individual."

Section 201 of 1917.—

"This title shall apply to all trades or businesses of whatever description, whether continuously carried on or not, except—

(b) Corporations exempt from tax under the provisions of section eleven of Title I of such Act of September eight, nineteen hundred and sixteen, as amended by this Act, and partnerships and individuals carrying on or doing the same business, or coming within the same description; * * *."

It will thus be seen that these exemptions apply only to a corporation or association. "In order to be exempt the corporation or association must meet three tests: (a) it must be organized and operated for one or more of the specified purposes; (b) it must be organized and operated exclusively for such purposes; and (c) no part of its income must inure to the benefit of private stockholders or individuals" (Holmes Fed. Taxes, 1920 Ed., p. 214).

Does the respondent corporation meet each of these tests? Sections 154 to 164, inclusive, of Act No. 1459 of the Philippine Commission is entitled "Religious Corporations." Under this Act, the bishop, chief priest, or presiding elder of any religious denomination, society, or church, may become a corporation sole for the administration of its temporalities, and all temporalities, estates, and properties of the entity shall be held in trust by him for the sole benefit of his religious denomination, society, or church, "including hospitals, schools, colleges, orphan asylums, parsonages, and cemeteries thereof."

We therefore do not contend that the respondent corporation does not squarely meet the first test set forth by Mr. Holmes. This is admitted in the statement of facts for the petitioner therein agreed that the respondent is a corporation "organized and operated for religious, beneficial (beneficencia), scientific, and educational purposes."

We do insist, however, that the respondent corporation fails to meet the second test in that it was not organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific and educational purposes. In the first place, the respondent's administrator or manager, so-called in Act No. 1459, is authorized under the said Act to lease or rent any and all the corporation's real estate, including the buildings thereon, to invest and reinvest its income and capital in such commercial institutions or enterprises as he may see fit and finally to purchase and hold real and personal property for the corporation and to mortgage or sell the real property held by it upon obtaining an order from the proper court. And in the second place, it is admitted that the respondent was engaged in many of the ordinary commercial activities of every day life during the year 1913. It was from these sources that the respondent's income was derived upon which the tax was levied and collected.

From Exhibit Number 1 (record, pp. 10, 11), it appears that the respondent's income and expenditures for the calendar year 1913, according to its own declaration, were as follows: Income received from rents of houses and agricultural estates, 91,141.69 pesos; dividends from the Bank of the Philippines and various industrial companies or corporations, 95,918.04 pesos; profits from other investments and corporations, 54,239.19 pesos; grand total, 241,298.92 pesos.

Expenditures for expenses of the Provincial Father, subscription to newspapers, drafts remitted to Spain for subsistence of priest residing there, subsistence of priests of the corporation residing in Manila, interest paid on loans, interest on the insurance fund, fixed expenditures, interest paid to banks, losses sustained on sale of hotel stock, losses sustained on investment in a box manufacturing company, losses sustained on investment in drug store, sundry office expenses, other expenses, and depreciation on houses for rents, convent and church, 169,305.24 pesos.

RESUME.—Total gross income, 241,298.92 pesos; total expenditures, 169,305.24 pesos; total net income, 71,993.68 pesos.

The Collector of Internal Revenue, after investigation, found the amounts for income taxes to be the following: Income from rents of houses and agricultural estates, 90,092.70 pesos; from dividends on stock of the bank of the Philippines and various other companies or corporations, 96,465.54 pesos; from other corporations and profits on the sale of stocks, wine, chocolate, merchandise, religious articles, unclassified profits, and donations, 68,144.45 pesos; grand total income, 254,702.69 pesos. Expenditures same as stated in the respondent's declaration, except the collector did not permit a reduction of 58,937.67 pesos for drafts remitted to Spain for the subsistence of the priest residing there, and 1,367.38 pesos for interest credited to the insurance fund, leaving total expenditures of 69,745.88 pesos.

RESUME.—Total income for tax purposes, 254,702.69 pesos; total expenses allowed, 69,745.88 pesos; leaving a balance for taxation purposes of 184,956.81 pesos for the entire year. For the ten months' period covered by the Act, 154,130.68 pesos.

According to Exhibit 2 (record, p. 11), the respondent's capital of 380,041.76 pesos was invested in 1913 in the following institutions: The Bank of the Philippines, Manila ice plant, hotel, drug store, box manufacturing company, rope manufacturing company, cigar factory and an insurance company. And according to Exhibit 3 (record, p. 11), the respondent's real estate was valued in that year at 3,276,213.00 pesos, consisting of houses, agricultural estates and convent and church, the convent and church being valued at 1,888,353.00 pesos.

It is, therefore, clear that practically the entire amount of the respondent's income was realized from purely commercial sources. The result is that the respondent was not organized exclusively for religious, educational and charitable purposes but also for commercial purposes, and that it was not operated exclusively for such purposes. But the respondent contends that the means it employs, as set forth in the record of this case, of making its capital and properties produce income, do not destroy its character as a religious, charitable, or educational institution and consequently its right to exemption from taxation under paragraph G (a) of the law of 1913, because the petitioner admits that no part of such income is applied to the benefit of any particular stockholder, individual, or member of the institutions.

The fundamental ground upon which all exemptions in favor of corporations and associations organized and operated exclusively for the purposes stated in the laws of 1913, 1916 and 1918 are based is the benefit conferred upon the public by them, and a consequent relief, to some extent, of the burden upon the government to care for and advance the interests of its citizens.

While the relations between the respondent corporation, known by the short name of Corporacion de Padres Dominicanos, and the Roman Catholic Apostolic Church are not set out in the record, it has long since been settled that all the property in the possession or under the control of that Order belongs to the Church and not to the Order, the latter being only a "religious community" incorporated in the former. This fact, however, can have no material bearing upon the issues under consideration.

What factors or elements are to be considered as controlling in deciding the question of the respondent's liability to taxation? We think it ought to be conceded that if it be true that the entire profits derived by the respondent from the various sources stated in Exhibit No. 1 were devoted to the purposes of the Order, that fact would no more change the nature of its business than if such profits had been distributed among the members for investment in any private enterprise. The renting and leasing of the houses and large estates, the buying and selling of stocks of corporations and associations and the buying and selling of wines, etc., would still be commercial transactions pure and simple. It is no answer to this proposition to say that if the respondent is not permitted to invest its capital and profits in income producing enterprises, it would soon have to cease its activities for lack of funds, for all agree that the tax is levied upon the net income only and not upon the gross income or market value of the properties. We take it that no one could claim that the United States Steel Corporation would be changed to a charitable institution by devoting its entire profits to charitable purposes. Furthermore, no one will deny the fact that the properties of the respondent, other than the churches, convents and cemeteries, are liable, and properly so, for the ordinary taxes, such as are imposed upon the same character and kind of property owned by any other person or entity.

The policy of the Philippine Government in respect to the exemption of certain kinds of property from taxation was announced in 1901 in Section 48 of Act No. 183 wherein it was provided that "lands or buildings used exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes, and not for profit, shall be exempt from taxation, but such exemption shall not extend to lands or buildings held for investment, though income therefrom be devoted to religious, charitable, scientific, or educational purposes." Although the Supreme Court of the Philippine Islands adopted the American rule of strict construction in a modified form in respect to exemption of property from taxation (The Roman Catholic Apostolic Church v. Hastings et al., 5 Phil. Reps. 701), we have been unable to find any holding of that court bringing "non-sacred" property of the Church within the statute above quoted.

The dominant purpose in use made of the houses, estates, etc., of the respondent is to obtain revenue or profit, although it may be applied to the general objects of the Order. This is the test.

ADMINISTRATIVE RULINGS.

The Treasury Department of the United States, in construing paragraph 6 of Section 231 of the law of 1918, which is in this respect essentially the same as the above quoted provisions of the law of 1913, held that:

"(2) Where a religious corporation owns a large quantity of farm land and works it, and also manufactures and sells clothing and other articles for profit, it is not operated exclusively for religious purposes and is not exempt, even though its property is held in common and its profits do not inure to the benefit of individual members of the society." (Art. 517, Regulations 45, 1920 Edition, published January 28, 1921.)

This Regulation rests upon various opinions of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue of the United States.

In Law Opinion 550 (June 3, 1918) of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue of the United States the claim for exemption of the United Society of Believers (commonly known as Shakers) under Section 11 (a) Sixth of the law 1916 was considered. The purpose of the society was stated to be "faithfully and honestly to occupy, improve and diffuse the various gifts and talents, both of a spiritual and temporal nature, with which Divine wisdom has blest us, for the service of God, for the honor of the Gospel, and for the mutual protection, support, comfort and happiness of each other as brethren and sisters in the Gospel, and for such other pious and charitable purposes as the Gospel may require." The society owned some two thousand acres of land with farm buildings thereon. In denying the exemption the Solicitor said, among other things, that:

"The society in question appears to fulfill the first and third of these conditions (referring to the conditions above set forth and copied from Holmes Fed. Taxes); not, however, the second. Although a religious corporation, it is not 'organized and operated exclusively for religious purposes.' Part of its operations are purely industrial in character. It owns 2000 acres of farm land, with barns and other buildings thereon. It is forced to make 'a large expenditure of money' in obtaining the labor necessary to work this land. The members also make medicines, fancy articles and clothing, some of which is sold to the public. An association with such extensive industrial activities cannot reasonably be said to be operated 'exclusively' for religious purposes. This is true even though the net income of the society is applied to its general purposes, no part of it going to individual members."

In Committee on Appeals and Review Recommendation 673 (October 17, 1921) the Solicitor's office had under consideration the claim for exemption of The Independent Order of Foresters. In holding that this order was removed from the exempt class specified in Section 231 of the law of 1918 it was said, among other things, that:

"We are presented with the question as to whether the dominating control of a number of other corporations engaged in ordinary industrial pursuits destroys that exemption. In Solicitor's Opinion 20 it was said 'if an organization is actually operated in a non-exempt manner * * * it is not entitled to exemption.' Also in Solicitor's Memorandum 431 it was stated generally that a religious corporation owning property in excess of its legitimate needs 'thereby carrying on an industrial pursuit distinct from its religious activities' is not exempt. See also Law Opinion 550 ('Shakers') and Solicitor's Memorandum 341 (Nutterische Bruder Geneinde). In denying exemption under Section 231 (11) it was said in Solicitor's Memorandum 952 that where a society of fruit growers 'departs from this purpose (operating exclusively as sales agent) and engages in an ordinary business pursuit—such as the buying and selling of fruit—it is thereby removed from the exempted class.' See also 31 Ops. Atty. Gen. 403; Solicitor's Memorandum 615 and 902."

Law Opinion 550, supra, was approved and followed in Solicitor's Memorandum 341 of July 9, 1918. In that case the Hutterische Bruder Gemeinde was incorporated for the purpose of "engaging in, carrying on and promoting the Christian religion, religious teachings and worship." It owned land and grist mills which it operated. The income was used in supporting the corporation, its members and their families, and in the purchase of more land to be used in the same manner. The members had no right, title or interest in or to any of the property or income. The corporation was denied exemption, not on the ground that it was not a religious corporation, but because it was not "exclusively organized and operated for religious purposes."

The opinions of the Solicitor of Internal Revenue of the United States, above cited, are not published in pamphlet form but are available in the Solicitor's office. These opinions are cited for the purpose of showing the foundation upon which the above quoted Regulation rests.

The practical construction of a statute by those charged with carrying it into effect is entitled to great weight when the statute afterwards comes before the court for construction, and when such departmental construction has been long in use, as in the instant case, so that the act has been enforced according to such construction for several years, the length of time should be an additional argument in favor of its validity in cases of doubt. In Schell v. Fauche, 136 U. S. 562, it was said:

"In all cases of ambiguity, the contemporaneous construction, not only of the courts, but of the Departments, and even of the officials, is universally held to be controlling."

In Maryland Casualty Co. v. United States, 251 U. S. 342, 385, the court said:

"It is settled by many recent decisions of this court that a regulation by a department of government, addressed to and reasonably adapted to the enforcement of an Act of Congress, the administration of which is confided to such department, has the force and effect of law if it be not in conflict with the express statutory provision. United States v. Grimand, 220 U. S. 506; United States v. Birdsall, 233 U. S. 223-231; United States v. Morehead, 243 U. S. 607."

The Government of the Philippine Islands v. El Monte De Piedad Y Caja De Ahorros De Manila, 35 Phil. Reps. 42, was an action to recover internal revenue taxes assessed on the monthly deposits and the capital employed by the defendant from the first of August, 1904, to June 30, 1914. The defendant is an institution organized in accordance with the canon law, having been created by the royal order of the King of Spain of July 8, 1880, existence an institution for the safe investment of the made under the royal patronate powers then existing in the Crown of Spain. That royal order brought into savings of the poor classes and to assist the needy in time of need by loaning such savings to them at a low rate of interest. The theory upon which the tax was levied and assessed was that the defendant was a bank within the definition of Section 110 of Act No. 1189, known as the Internal Revenue Law. The exemption was sought on the ground that the defendant was a savings bank. The court found and held that the defendant was a profit-making institution, although it may not have been designed as such, and that the profits derived from the investments and the deposits belong to the institution itself.

In Bank of Commerce v. Tennessee, 161 U. S. 134, 146, the court, among other things, said:

"These cases show the principle upon which is founded the rule that a claim for exemption from taxation must be clearly made out. Taxes being the sole means by which sovereignties can maintain their existence, any claim on the part of any one to be exempt from the full payment of his share of taxes on any portion of his property must on that account be clearly defined and founded upon plain language. There must be no doubt or ambiguity in the language used upon which the claim to the exemption is founded."

CONCLUSION.

To the end that the errors complained of may be corrected, we respectfully ask that the case be reviewed by this Honorable Court.
